New skin resurfacing treatment: E-Matrix Sublative Skin Rejuvenation

We are very excited to offer a new technology that many of you have requested: a treatment that can treat fine lines and wrinkles, improve the appearance of acne scars, improve textural irregularities and tighten skin - with little to no downtime!

The eMatrix™ system is an FDA-approved Sublative Skin Rejuvenation treatment for fine lines, wrinkles, acne scars and other skin imperfections from sun damage.

This is a truly unique procedure that uses fractionated bi-polar radiofrequency to penetrate through the top layer of skin. This sends more energy beneath the surface to maximize collagen production while leaving the top layer of skin intact. It's a safe treatment and effective for all skin types.

There is little to no downtime with eMatrix, so patients can return to normal activity after treatments. Treatments take less than one hour.

Everyone wants their skin to look and feel beautiful during the holidays. You can achieve that healthy glow by combining exfoliation, skincare products and laser treatments. These treatments will give you a beautiful and healthy complexion.

Exfoliating

Healthy skin starts with regular exfoliation. Exfoliating removes the outer most layer of dead skin cells, called the stratum corneum. This process helps stimulate new skin cell growth and rejuvenates the skin.

There are many ways to exfoliate your skin, including microdermabrasion, chemical peels, chemical exfoliators in skincare products and special cleansing brushes like the Clarisonic brush.

Microdermabrasion is a mechanical form of exfoliating. There are many different systems used by professionals in skincare centers, some better than others, but all are the equivalent to a light “sanding” of the surface of the skin. Visible results are short term, but the long-term effects can be very beneficial.

Chemical peels are another mechanical method of exfoliation. Like microdermabrasion, there are several different types of chemical peels for various skin types delivering varying results. Typically, the more visible peeling will yield better results, but this can result in possibly some downtime.

Good medical-grade skincare regimens will include products containing chemical exfoliators for daytime and night time exfoliation.

Laser treatments

Laser treatments provide skin rejuvenation at every layer of the dermis and can make visible improvements in skin tone, texture, laxity and elasticity.

Limelight treats the epidermal layer of the skin. It is an intense pulsed light, or IPL, treatment that removes redness and brown pigmentation leaving the skin clearer.

Laser Genesis (a non-ablative resurfacing treatment) delivers heat to the mid dermal layer of the skin, stimulating blood and oxygen flow. This gently plumps skin while stimulating new collagen growth leaving the skin looking fresh and rejuvenated.

Titan delivers heat to the deep dermal layer of the skin, where most of our collagen is, stimulating and tightening collagen, thus improving skin laxity.

eMatrix™ is a new subablative fractional device that delivers radio frequency energy to the two lower layers of the dermis. This improves texture, tone and skin laxity without causing injury to the epidermis like most fractional treatments, so there is little to no downtime.
